NUMBER 20

Sheriff's Sale!

By virtue of execution No. 660, directed to me which issued from the Clerk's Office of the Bourbon Circuit Court, in favor of B. B. Soper's administratrix against Ed. Bedford, I will on between the hours of 11 o'clock, a. m., and 12 o'clock, m., at the Court House door in Paris, Bourbon County Ky., expose to Public Sale, to the highest bidder, the following property, (or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's debt, interests and costs) to-wit:

Monday, March 13, '05,

A tract of land in Bourbon County, Kentucky, on the Hawkins and Cummins turnpike, containing 90 acres, 3 roads and 19 square poles, adjoining the property of John Allen, Geo. Hicks, Harriet Lewis, Levi Florence, J. H. Hawkins and others. Also a tract of 1/4-acre of land on the aforesaid turnpike in said county, being the same property conveyed to Edwin W. Bedford, Jr., by Kate Miley and husband, by deed of record in deed book 89, page 432, Bourbon county Clerk's office, to which reference is made for more particular description, levied upon as the property of Edwin W. Bedford, Jr.

TERMS—Sale will be made upon a credit of 3 months, the purchaser to execute bond with approved surety, bearing 6 per cent. interest from day of sale until paid.

Amount to be made $175.17.
Witness my hand, this 23rd day of Feb., 1905.

Got Off Cheap.

He may well think, he has got off cheap, who, after having contracted constipation or indigestion, is still able to perfectly restore his health. Nothing will do this but Dr. King's New Life Pills. A quick, pleasant, and certain cure for headaches, constipation, etc. 25c at Oberdorfer's drug store; guaranteed.

Absolutely Pure.

Distilled in positively purity, aged in the wood to maturity, VanHook Whisky is unexcelled in quality, comforting ripeness and smoothness that age and purity alone can confer. It keeps the stomach in good condition and wards off disease and is the next thing to a doctor in case of sickness or like emergency. While "the proof of the pudding may be in the eating," the test of the whisky is not only in the drinking but in the chemical analysis as well. VanHook is absolutely free from adulteration. Read what the chemist of the Agricultural Department of the State College of Kentucky has recently said:

AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION OF THE STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 14, '05.

Mr. W. S. Bradley,

Lexington, Ky.,

Dear Sir:—The sample of VanHook Whisky which you gave me tested as follows:

Total solids..... 0.19 %

Ash..... 0.0074 %

Proof..... 109.8 %

Alcohol by volume..... 54.9 %

Fusel oil..... 0.39 %

Volatile acids, calculated as acetic acid..... 0.046 %

Ethers, calculated as ethyl acetate..... 0.112 %

From the above analysis it appears to be free from adulteration.

Yours very truly,

W. H. SCHERFFUS, Chemist.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rose Coghlan was the bright particular star of Lester Wallack's original American production of "Diplomacy," Sardou's masterly comedy. Through the intervening years her name has been linked with that of Countess Zicka, the Russian adventuress in the play, which has justly been called her great characterization. To play the role of Henri Beauchere opposite her, Howard Kyle has been engaged. Mr. Kyle is well known as a fine type of heroic actor, and with two such sterling artists in the celebrated comedy of intrigue, an unusual dramatic treat is assured when "Diplomacy" comes to the Paris Grand on Monday, March 13th.

Miss Marie Wainwright, one of the foremost Shakespearean actresses of the present day will appear at the Paris Grand on Saturday, March 11, matinee and night, in a magnificent revival of "Twelfth Night." Sunshine and shadow have made themselves equally potent in the delineation which Miss Wainwright gives to all parts that demand them. These alternating qualities are seen to the utmost advantage in her portrayal of the tender Viola and the equally enchanting Cesario. She has played all the great Bard's heroines. She was the Ophelia, the Portia, the Beatrice and the Juliet, with such famous artists as Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett, John McCollough and Tomasso Salvini. Her success in "Twelfth Night" has been so pronounced and she has invested the part with such life-like tenderness, grace and ease that all unite in acclaiming her the only Viola of the present day.

Self-Confessed Murderer.

Grant Ingram, the desperate negro who has killed Monday by Jailer Frank Hines at Somerset, was the self-confessed murderer of William B. Rucker, night operator at Danville, Ky., on the night of February 4, 1904. This confession was made to Sergeant Crawley recently while Ingram was on the train being taken by Sergeant Brawley to Somerset, where he was wanted on the charge of robbery and malicious shooting.

NEARING THE END.

The Case of the Government
Against Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick About Completed.

DEFENSE HAS A FEW WITNESSES.

Both Sides Express Themselves as Pleased With the Case as Made Out by the Government.

Two Letters Written By the Woman To Beckwith and Spear Were Read and Afforded Considerable Amusement.

Cleveland, O., March 9.—The case of the government against Mrs. Chadwick was completed. The entire afternoon session of the court was taken up by the introduction as evidence of character deposit slips, books of the bank and two letters written by Mrs. Chadwick to Beckwith and Spear.

The most important point made by the state in its entire case was gained when District Attorney Sullivan, after a hard fight with the attorneys for the defense, secured the admission as evidence of two drafts aggregating $80,000 issued by the Oberlin bank in favor of Mrs. Chadwick August 24, 1903. On this same date Mrs. Chadwick obtained from the bank a certified check for $12,500, and Receiver Lyon testified that there was nothing on the books of the bank to show that at the time of receiving the drafts and the check Mrs. Chadwick had a cent of money in the bank or was in any way entitled to credit.

The drafts were entered on the books of the bank one month and five days after being issued. During this time the books of the Oberlin bank showed that the money was held to its credit at the Importers and Traders' National bank in New York, while it was in reality in the possession of Mrs. Chadwick.

The Arguments.
It is believed that only a part of the next session of the court will be required for the witnesses for the defenses, and that the attorneys will commence their arguments by Thursday afternoon at the latest.

Both sides expressed themselves as pleased with the case as made out by the government.
Two letters written by Mrs. Chadwick to Beckwith and Spear were read during the afternoon session, and afforded considerable amusement to the court. The letter first read was written jointly to Beckwith and Spear, and related to a loan which Mrs. Chadwick had secured from W. L. Fay, of Elyria, O. It declared that the writer had given a check to Fay, and when he came to see them about it, all they had to do was to say that they had agreed to extend her paper. It would not be necessary for them to say anything beyond that. The letter concluded: "He said that you would be surprised to see the check in his hands, so you had better be surprised if you don't say it, you can look it."

The second letter was written to Spear alone. In it Mrs. Chadwick asked him to certify a check to be given by her to Henry Wurst, of Elyria, saying that she would get the goods in the east to meet the check, "so draw a check for $15,000," the letter said, "and I will sign it, and pay well for it. I am about to do something of great interest to us all."

COURT OF INQUIRY.

President Has Ordered One To Meet at Fort Meyers, Va.

Washington, March 9.—By direction of the president a court of inquiry has been ordered to meet at Fort Meyers, Va., March 20, to report on the question whether Capt. Stephen M. Foote, artillery corps, observed due safety precautions in the supervision of the artillery practice of his battery at Mt. Gretna, Pa., last October. This action grows out of the accidental shooting of Second Lieut. Corbison during the practice.

TWO STUDENTS STABBED.

They Are Reported To Be in a Critical Condition.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 9.—Harold H. Corson, of Birmingham, Mich., one of the two sophomore students stabbed during a hair cutting hazing episode, is in a critical condition. The knife penetrated the membrane sheathing the heart. L. A. Warren, who was stabbed in the back, is also in a critical condition. One knife thrust penetrated his lungs. No arrests have been made as yet.

Pipe Lines Common Carriers.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 9.—The senate passed a bill making all pipe lines, constructed or to be constructed in the state for the purpose of carrying oil, common carriers and placing them under the direction of the railroad commissioners.

Andrew Carnegie's Appointment.

Boston, March 9.—Andrew Carnegie was appointed a member of the committee to visit the Harvard chemical laboratory by the overseers of Harvard college to succeed the late Wm. H. Baldwin, of New York.

Porto Rican Coat of Arms.

San Juan, P. R., March 9.—The legislature has adopted the coat of arms used under the Spanish regime, replacing the one adopted by the first legislature under American civil government.

Boil Water in Paper.

Paper bags are used by Japanese soldiers when they wish to boil water. The bag is filled with water, and then water is poured over it. It is hung over the fire, and in ten minutes the water is boiling. The bag can be used eight or ten times, and the cost of it is about a penny.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce Robt. L. Stout, of Woodford county, a candidate for the nomination of Circuit Judge in this district, composed of Bourbon, Scott, Franklin and Woodford counties, subject to the action of the Democratic primary April 5th.

We are authorized to announce Ira Julian, of Franklin, as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic primary on April 5th.

We are authorized to announce Col. H. P. Thomson as a candidate for State Senator from the 28th district composed of the counties of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Chas. Swift as a candidate for State Senator from the 28th district composed of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Conflict of Authority.

The conflict of authority between Circuit Judges Riddell, of Breathitt district, and Benton, of Clark district, has reached a phase that is most interesting to everyone but Jalier Jas. H. Boone, of Clark, who seems destined to be ground between the upper and neither millstones.

Ever since Mose Feltner and Sam Fields have been in the Winchester jail strenuous efforts have been made to get possession of them in Breathitt county, but without avail. Some days ago Judge Riddell sent special officers to Winchester with an order of delivery addressed to Jailer Boone. Mr. Boone refused to deliver the prisoners, acting on order of Judge J. M. Benton of his district, who decided the prisoners must remain in the Winchester jail unless they should give bond for their appearance at the April term of court when they will be tried for contempt of court. A few days later Judge Riddell sent a special officer to that city with a warrant of arrest for the jailer on a charge of contempt of court in not giving up the prisoners on his order. Mr. Boone refused to go, as the statutes clearly showed that the officer had no jurisdiction. Wednesday Judge Riddell sent a telegram to Jailer Boone that if he did not send or bring the prisoners to Jackson Thursday, he would both fine and imprison him.

The prisoners will stay at Winchester and the next move of Judge Riddell will be watched with interest.

It is said that both Mose Feltner and Sam Fields have been indicted at Jackson on old charges. Fields is charged with having shot a man seven or eight years ago, and Feltner is charged with having shot a peddler several years ago and also with having accepted a bribe of five hundred dollars from James B. Marcum to kill Judge James Hargis.

PROTECT YOURSELF AGAINST GERMS.

People With Weak Stomachs Most Liable to Catch Disease.

When the stomach and digestive organs are weak, the food does not digest, and there is a sour, slimy, fermenting mass, making it an ideal spot for the disease germs to multiply. The only way to protect yourself against disease germs is to strengthen the stomach and digestive organs, and Mi-o-na is the only agent so far as is known, that will accomplish this.

The ordinary medicine that is taken for indigestion and stomach troubles is advertised to act upon the food alone, and hence can give no more than temporary relief. Mi-o-na is a certain cure in all cases of stomach troubles, excepting cancer, because it enables the stomach and digestive organs to act in the way Nature intended they should. Drugs cannot digest the food; they simply decompose it.

If you suffer with distress after eating, pains in the head, chest, sides and back, belching of gases and undigested food, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, or vertigo, heartburn, variable appetite, sick headaches, spots before the eyes, and have a general feeling of despondency, weakness, and debility you should at once strengthen the stomach and digestive system by the use of Mi-o-na. There is no liquid, no alcohol, no spoonful doses with Mi-o-na. Just one tablet out of a fifty cent box before eating, and your stomach will soon become so strong and healthy that you will be germ proof. Ask Clarke & Co. to show you the guarantee under which they sell Mi-o-na; costs nothing unless it cures.

Judge Julian is recognized as a fine lawyer throughout the State, an astute politician and popular gentleman. He is well-known and well-liked. We have no doubt he will make a formidable candidate.

It Is Simply Awful.

We would like to call the attention of the city officials to the pavement in front of the livery stable on Pleasant street, near the Methodist Church. A meeting is now in progress at this church and the citizens that attend are compelled to wade through mud and mire at this point. One lady came near falling in this hole Wednesday evening. It is simply awful and a disgrace to our city.

WALL PAPER.—Select your wall paper early while the stock is fresh and we are ready to put it on the walls. We have the largest stock in Central Kentucky and are ready with competent workmen to hang it on the walls. You don't have to pick from a sample—"we are there with the goods" in stock.

Death of Mrs. Ev. Rogers.

Mrs. Mary Evaline Rogers, aged 77 years, died at her home, on Main street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, of pneumonia.

Mrs. Rogers was one of the most prominent women in Bourbon county, known and loved by everybody. "Miss Ev.," as she was called by all, was of a cheerful disposition and had words of good cheer for everyone she met, and her death is deeply mourned in the county where she has lived for so many years.

She was perhaps the wealthiest woman in the county, and was charitable, doing many acts of charity that the world never heard of. A clever, noble Christian woman was "Miss Ev.," and she will be missed. She had been a consistent member of the Christian Church for many years. She was noted for her business capacity and for her honesty in every business transaction. She owned nearly one thousand acres of Bourbon land besides other valuable property. Her children, Mrs. Johnson Rogers and Mrs. Jas. E. Kern, preceded her to the grave, but she leaves a large number of nieces and nephews, and one brother, Mr. Jos. A. Hildreth, who is the only remaining child of a family of twelve children.

The funeral will occur from the Christian Church to-day (Friday) at 10:30 o'clock, services by Elder J. S. Sweeney, assisted by Elder Taylor Sharrard. Burial in the Paris cemetery.

President Jenkins Gets Lost.

President Jenkins, of Kentucky University, Lexington, was advertised to lecture Tuesday night at the Minerva Christian Church, in Mason county. The house was crowded to overflowing and the debt on the little church promised to be wiped out. But the time for the lecturer to begin arrived and he was not there. About 9 o'clock a telephone conveyed this awful message—"President Jenkins is lost!" A committee was started out to find him, and finally telephoned—"President Jenkins is found!" It happened this way: The great Lexington minister had taken the noon train for Cincinnati to connect with the C. and O. that reaches Maysville at 5:30 o'clock. He arrived on time, had lunch and repaired to a liveryman of his flock, making request for a conveyance, with careful driver, to transport himself to the little burg beyond.

They "drove" and "drove" until it became apparent they must soon be there. After three hours of this aimless traveling in the country mire, the minister made bold to stop and inquire at a nearby farmhouse if they were not "almost to Minerva."

"Why, man," said the agriculturist, "You uns are headed straight fer Maysville, an' ef ye look ahead you'll see her 'lectric lights."

It was true; the darkey had taken the wrong turn in the road, and like the crafty fox, had come back to the starting point, and the Minervaites missed it, and the debt is still hanging over the church.

SONG OF THE COMMON PEOPLE

We are the common people, the hewers of wood and stone,
The dwellers in common places, mighty of brawn and bone,
Bearing the common burden that only the shirkers shun,
And doing the common duty that others have left undone.
Dubbed, by the few, plebeian, rabble or proletariat,
Ours is the hand that feeds them, ours is the prize they share,
And ours is the common blessing, free to the toilers all,
To win from the lowly valley unto the summits tall.

Common, and only common—
This by the night of birth—
Yet the world in its need leans on us—
We are the kings of the earth.

We are the common people, and ours is the common clay
That a God deemed fit for using, when, in that olden day,
He took the dust of the Garden, the dust that His will obeyed,
Fashioned and formed and shaped it, and man in His image made;
And, seeing that God selected such clay for the human test,
And deeming His wisdom suffices to choose but the surely best,
We, who are common people and made of the common clay,
Leave to the proud uncommon to improve on the Maker's way.

Common, and only common—
Tattered, sometimes, and frayed—
We still are content with the pattern
That God in His wisdom made.

We are the common people, yet out of our night is wrought,
Ever, by God's own fiat, masters of mighty thought,
Men of that grand republic whose rulers walk alone,
Piercing the future shadows, knowing what seems have known;
And, measured by these, the unco's are petty and wee and small,
Playing with gilded baubles, chattering, voluble all;
And these, our sons, surpass them as the hills o'er top the glen,
For their great hearts throb to the world's long sob, and they are the saviors of men.

Common, and only common,
Hopelessly commonplace,
Yet out of our loins still issue
The saviors of the race.
—Alfred J. Waterhouse, in Success.

The Iron Brigade

A STORY OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC

By GEN. CHARLES KING
Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

McKinnon, wrote certain townsfolk to Fred's general, had so lost caste in the community that he had determined on a war record to rehabilitate himself, and was now seeking the lieutenant-colonelcy of a new regiment being raised in their midst. What with bad news from Schenck and Milroy, falling back on Fremont after a thrashing at the Bull Pasture, a deep disappointment over McClellan's being held an entire month in front of Yorktown and a feeling that we were getting rather the worst of the grapple on the peninsula, the atmosphere about the war department was gloomy enough the day the young officer arrived.

In the ante-room, with officers, orderlies and messengers grouped about or coming and going, sat the long, lanky and phenomenally solemn Virginian he had first seen that night at the stone house on the Warrenton pike. Jennings knew the newcomer at a glance and, springing up, shook him effusively by the hand. A moment later an officer appeared at another door and beckoned Benton to enter. "What do you know about that man?" was the very first question propounded the instant the door closed behind him.

"Nothing," said Benton, "except that he was at the stone house, in trouble with some of our brigade the first time I saw him—seemed to be well known to Dr. Chilton and other Virginians, and later was with the Sixth Wisconsin the afternoon they captured Maj. Lounsbury."

"But—how about papers—information—concerning our forces that he received that night? You were captured while grappling with the cavalry officer who brought them."

"I?" cried Benton. "Good heavens!" And then stood dumb, for all on a sudden it flashed over him. Rosalie! Rosalie, who had so inexplicably donned Ladue's uniform, ventured down through the darkness to the pike, seeking some one at the stone house. Rosalie, who had refused to tell what influence prompted that apparently reckless escapade! Papers? Information concerning our movements? Why, what sense was there in her taking all that risk when at that very moment our pickets were falling back before Stuart's triumphant advance—when all but a few of the guard had already disappeared from the Henry place—when by midnight or at the latest at dawn she was almost sure to be again in touch with her own friends and kindred? All this and more flashed through his mind as he stood there in the dark little office, with his interrogator impatiently facing him, and two other officials looking up at him from a paper-littered table, much impressed, evidently, by the significance of his silence and embarrassment.

"Yes," sharply repeated the first speaker, "papers and, doubtless, valuable information. You saw them pass to Jennings, as he calls himself, did you not?"

"I saw nothing of the kind!" answered Benton, inexpressibly relieved that as yet, at least, he had had no occasion to speak of her. "Indeed," he went on, eagerly, "I was too busy trying to get out of the scrape to think of Jennings at all. I made a jump for my horse and was in a hand-to-hand fight in two seconds. I never knew what became of Jennings."

"You remember Sergt. Miller, do you not?"

"I remember a sergeant—an Indiana sergeant, and a very keen one who was there, but I feared he and his party were killed or captured."

"Some of them were," said the examining officer, grimly, "but Miller dived into the bushes, made his way through the darkness and escaped. He declares he saw the young rebel officer toss the packet to Jennings and heard him cry, 'For Gen. Armistead—to-night—sure!' And now here is Jennings begging to be allowed to see two prisoners—Maj. Lounsbury and the young Virginian, Pelham, who was wounded protecting him the day you were rescued. He brings a note from the president. Look here!" and taking a scrap of paper from his desk the staff officer held it forth for Benton's inspection. It was brief and to the point:

"The bearer, Mr. Jennings, has been of service and asks to see two friends—prisoners—Maj. Lounsbury and Trooper Pelham. I shall be glad if opportunity can be given him."

"(Signed) A. LINCOLN."

Benton read and looked up inquiringly. "I, too, should like to see them—Lounsbury, at least," said he, with eyes that kindled and lips that set, "but not as a prisoner. I have a score to settle with that gentleman. When does Mr. Jennings go?"

"Can't say. The secretary said no emphatically—not until matters were explained. It was thought you might settle it one way or another before we questioned him." And the officer was manifestly disappointed, and still he persisted. "You heard nothing about him?"—Dr. Chilton never spoke of him while you were at Charlottesville?"

"I cannot recall his ever doing so—except casually. But Judge Armistead, not the general, was there at Gainesville. My belief is that Gen. Armistead was not near Manassas when I was taken. Miller must have misunderstood."

"Well," said the officer, finally, "I'm sorry we had to trouble you, but the secretary thought you would know more of this suspected stranger. Gen. McDowell trusted him, we fear, too much, and as you are to see the president we thought you might open his eyes if the fellow were playing a double game. I dare say you know people sometimes impose on the president," and here the captain smiled, whimsically, "and that's why when he could issue these things as an order, he won't. He thinks it wiser to let the secretary handle matters of the kind. Now, your general, Mr. Benton, is being accused of having southern leanings because he has been protecting southern property there about Fredericksburg."

"Some defenseless women, left all alone, asked for guards and got them," answered Benton, stoutly. "I shouldn't wonder if their lords and masters are seecsh, but we're not warring on women, I take it."

"As yet—no," was the thoughtful reply, "and may God forbid our having to come to it. But, my young friend, if you knew half what we know—and we don't begin to know half that those brainy, daring, scheming, smiling southern women are doing all around us—you might think the time close at hand when they, too, would have to be made amenable to the laws of war. It isn't a week since one of them ran off with one of our prisoners here, and you know what a trick was played by—Dr. Chilton's daughter."

And now indeed did Benton's face begin to burn, a thing the captain and the silent listeners were quick to note.

"You have your receipt for your prisoner, I presume. Then I'll not detain you further, only—come this way. We've got to question your friend Jennings next," and so saying the captain led his visitor through a second room where at crowded desks a score of clerks were writing. "When do you go to the white house?" he suddenly asked.

"I don't know. I expected to learn here. But I hoped to have time to get refreshed up a bit, and I need new—"

"Nonsense! You look as though you'd just stepped out of a bandbox in that uniform. Ask Mr. Stone to come here," he added, to a statuesque soldier at the door.

"The uniform may be all right, but what I need is sash and side arms," said Benton, still weighted with the traditions of his "regular" regiment.

"Never mind them! The president never notices what a man wears or knows what he himself has on. I suppose he wants to hear what you saw and heard—and something about the Chiltons, for they seem to be in hot water. Ah, Mr. Stone, what time was Mr. Benton to report to the white house?"

"I was to bring him over as soon as he arrived, sir. Is this the gentleman?" And a young man in civilian garb bowed courteously. Then, with a promise to return, as there were matters on which Gen. Thomas wished to question him, Benton hurried away.

It was not yet nine o'clock, but already half a dozen carriages were halted along the semi-circular drive in front of the mansion, and a number of pallid, anxious women and grave-visaged men were gathered about the beautiful, colonnaded portico. Through the waiting group the messenger swiftly led his charge. Mr. Stone led Benton to a long window facing the river and the heights of Arlington beyond, left him there and disappeared. A moment or two later that door opened, and the two secretaries did not even rise or discontinue their work. A tall, bony, man, with brown, sunken cheeks came striding in. Switching his tangle coat tails out of the way, the president unhinged somewhere about the middle—and dropped on the edge of the table.

Laying his long, lean hand on Benton's knee, he bent earnestly toward him. "I need to know all you can tell me about Dr. Chilton and his family," said he. "Some of our vehement, war-to-the-hilt people are practically demanding the arrest of a southern family here to be dealt with in precisely the same way certain Virginians propose to deal with the doctor and that spirited daughter of his. No harm as yet," for here the young soldier's face had blanched and his eyes filled with dread and anguish. "No harm, that is—Have we further news this morning?" he turned and asked the busy secretary at the nearest desk, tilting the while one long leg over the other and clasping the bony knee with both hands. "Your general gave us the particulars of your escape so far as you had told him, and it is noted that you in no way reveal the names of those who aided you, but now—What is it, Mr. Nicholas?" for with solemn face, the confidential secretary, holding an open letter in his hand, now stood at the president's elbow. Mr. Lincoln took the paper, knitted his brows and began to read.

"NOT SO BAD."

"It came from the secret service, Mr. President, not ten minutes ago," said the secretary. "Col. Baker, I believe, is in the ante-room."

Benton felt like gripping the arms of his chair, for the room seemed swimming as the president looked quickly up. "Not so bad," said he, "if we can only take care of them here. They have simply banished them—father and daughter, both."

CHAPTER XVI.

"STONEWALL" IN AMBUSH.

McClellan's guns were thundering almost at the gates of the confederate capital when sympathetic kinsfolk took the Chiltons to their hearts and home and strove to soothe the wrathful old man. The city filled up fast with wounded. Every house was a hospital, and then, when by his devotion and professional skill, the good doctor might soon have rehabilitated himself, he was taken ill. When he was well enough, or at least so pronounced, to move at all, the crisis at the capital was over. McClellan was gone. The seat of war had shifted to the north. Jack, exchanged and released, was again in saddle, and how it was arranged Fred never heard until long after, father and daughter had been sent to Newport News with the wounded and exchanged, and thence had gone to the roof of the doctor's devoted sister in Washington. Once again had the great-hearted president sent for the general's aide-de-camp, and this time bade him go, meet the Chiltons and see them safely to their destination.

But that meeting had not made our Badger boy too happy. The doctor was aging fast and apparently breaking. Rosalie was stern and strange. Squire Benton, with Elinor, as he had long planned, hastened on to Washington when notified by wire that Fred had a week's leave from the front, and Fred's earnest, yet almost humble plea that he should be allowed to bring his father to see Dr. Chilton—his sister to see her—Rosalie had almost curtly refused. Then she had fairly stunned him by saying, "If you really wish to do me a favor, Mr. Benton, there is one man I'd like to meet, and that is—Maj. Lounsbury." Benton should have known by the flash in her eye, the fury in her tone that for no sweet assurance did she so desire to see that distinguished Virginian, now every moment expectant of exchange. But in Benton's helpless, hopeless love, he was consumed with unreasonable jealousy. Yet it was through his planning, after all, that they met—the blue-eyed sister who so surely had read her brother's secret—the dark-eyed, chafing, fitful, fuming Virginia beauty who so surely held it. Washington was torrid and unwholesome, and just before Fred hurried back to the division he had brief conference with his father. The Chiltons would surely need money, said he, and as surely refuse it if tendered by them. Neither the doctor nor Rosalie began to know until long months thereafter that the ample means so readily supplied by the doctor's widowed sister came from that hard-headed, hard-fisted western lawyer, whose next move was to Cape May with Elinor: and there were they still recuperating at the Atlantic seaboard, the fathers already friends, the daughters still "on guard" at the very moment when Jack Chilton, scouting with the advance of Fitzhugh Lee's brigade, and Paul Ladue, riding the dim picket lines of Ewell's grim veterans, and Fred Benton, here at Buckland's, closing in with that strong, disciplined division, were dreaming not ten miles apart of what the morrow might bring forth.

Not until the shadows grew long across the stubble fields that lovely August evening came the first fierce grapple of that devoted brigade. Marching at dawn through Buckland's, they found the pike toward Gainesville crowded with Sigel's trains and teamsters through which they slowly forced a way, for, far in the eastward distance little snowball puffs, bursting sudden into view above the treetops, then drifting into vaporous nothing, told the shells were flying fast ahead, while similar, fleecy cloudlets against the dark background of the Bull Run range told equally of other fighting to their left and rear. The corps commander, with his one division, dived into the winding wood roads toward Manassas until brought up standing after two p. m. by disconcerting news from Pope—that the hare had not waited for the bag, that swift-footed Jackson had given them the slip, and wasn't where they looked for him at all. In point of fact, having no cavalry to do his looking for him, Pope didn't know where Jackson was.

It is three hours later when, bidding his biggest division obey its new orders, just received, McDowell, rides away to find his chieftain Pope and show him the field. Thereby he loses Pope, loses touch with his divisions, loses all chance of usefulness in the battle that is to close the day—poses, in fact, himself, for he cannot find his way to his own command over the field he knew so well the year before, even when signalled by the guiding thunder of the heaviest cannonade, the sullen crashing of the freest volleying, those tangled woods have ever heard. At five or thereabouts comes staff officer from Pope with these astounding tidings: Jackson is located. Jackson has dared to cross Bull Run and march in the teeth of the coming corps of the Army of the Potomac. Reno and Kearny have followed his rear guard—Hill's light division—straight to Centerville. Where is Gen. McDowell? Here! Well, Gen. Pope's orders are for this, McDowell's corps, to retrace its steps to the Warrenton pike, then turn eastward and march forthwith on Centerville, whither Jackson, with all hands, has shifted his colors, and where Pope now proposes to apply the sack. Further orders will meet the corps on the way.

Now there is but one division to obey the order, but loud ring the bugles through the leafy woods. Up spring the men of the old brigade, refreshed by three hours' rest, with coffee and hard tack to comfort them ere starting, and, as the heads of columns reach the pike again and turn sturdily away eastward, some levelheaded band leader signals to his men, and the Black Hats set up a shout as the woods ring to the rollicking strains of "Ain't I glad to git out o' de Wilderness!"

Four brigades in solid column they swing along the broad, dry thoroughfare, full 6,000 boys in blue. [To Be Continued.]

Sampling the Goods.

He carried a long, slim leather case, and was evidently from out of town. Looking about him somewhat uncertainly, he asked for a certain book of alms. It was placed before him. He opened it at the first page, produced an antiquated flute, and began to play softly, turning leaf after leaf with careful fingers as each piece was finished. The shop assistants, much amused at first, grew weary of the monotonous droning, and one of them stepped up to him and said: "Do you think the book will suit you, sir?" The old man lowered the flute, and looking over in evident surprise, replied in a tone of gentle reproach, "How can I tell, young man, when I haven't played near half the tunes?" Then he placidly turned another page.—Youth's Com.

When the King Was a Boy.

When King Edward was a little boy, a party of Ojibwa Indians, who were given an audience by Queen Victoria, caused him much amusement, and he ran about among them, pulling at their fringed leggings and examining their trappings without the slightest fear. One of the chiefs delighted him hugely by presenting him with an eagle's feather and a bear's claw, and also made the little prince a pretty speech, describing him in true Red Indian fashion as "the very big little White Father whose eyes are like the sky that sees all things, and who is fat with goodness like a winter bear."—London Tit-Bits.

Diplomatic Suggestion.

Herbert Spencer, in the attitude of superintending his household affairs, was practical and amusing. At one time the poultice had not been giving satisfaction, so Mr. Spencer called his housekeeper, and gave her directions to transfer his custom to another tradesman, whose shop faced the delinquent's. "And, Miss Smith," said the author of "Synthetic Philosophy," "be particular that the first poultice sees you giving your orders to the second poultice!"—Argonaut.

HE HAD THEM SCRAMBLED.

Gave His Order for Eggs in a Somewhat Puzzling Way, and Something Happened.

A salesman in a department store who possesses considerable wit entered a restaurant in the central section of the city the other day, and, finding the waiter had been a recent arrival from Ireland, told him he wanted two fried eggs, says the Philadelphia Press.

"I want one egg fried on one side, and the other egg fried on the other side, and I want them quick," the salesman added. "Would you kindly write that on a piece of paper?" said the waiter.

"I haven't got time. Be quick, I tell you."

"One fried egg fried on both sides and the other fried egg fried on the other side," muttered the Irishman as he was leaving the table.

In a few minutes the salesman heard much commotion in the kitchen. There were loud words and they were punctuated with sounds which seemed like blows.

Presently the waiter appeared much excited, and, rushing up to the salesman, exclaimed:

"Say, I had a terrible fight with the cook about those eggs, and you'll have to take them scrambled."

Unpleasantly Suggestive.

When the editor of an English paper received a fine chicken he believed it to be a token from some appreciative reader. After the editor had enjoyed a dinner in which the supposed gift played a part, he received a letter from a man who said: "I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute which has arisen here. Can you tell us what the chicken died of?"—Albany Journal.

THE TRICKS

Coffee Plays on Some.

It hardly pays to laugh before you are certain of facts, for it is sometimes humiliating to think of afterwards.

"When I was a young girl I was a lover of coffee but was sick so much the doctor told me to quit and I did, but after my marriage my husband begged me to drink it again as he did not think it was the coffee caused the troubles.

"So I commenced it again and continued about 6 months until my stomach commenced acting bad and choking as if I had swallowed something the size of an egg. One doctor said it was neuralgia and indigestion.

"One day I took a drive with my husband three miles in the country and I drank a cup of coffee for dinner. I thought sure I would die before I got back to town to a doctor. I was drawn double in the buggy and when my husband hitched the horse to get me out into the doctor's office, misery came up in my throat and seemed to shut my breath off entirely, then left all in a flash and went to my heart. The doctor pronounced it nervous heart trouble and when I got home I was so weak I could not sit up.

"My husband brought my supper to my bedside with a nice cup of hot coffee, but I said: 'Take that back, dear, I will never drink another cup of coffee if you gave me everything you are worth, for it is just killing me.' He and the others laughed at me and said:

"The idea of coffee killing anybody."

"Well, I said, 'It is nothing else but coffee that is doing it.'"

"In the grocery one day my husband was persuaded to buy a box of Postum which he brought home and I made it for dinner and we both thought how good it was but said nothing to the hired men and they thought they had drank coffee until we laughed and told them. Well we kept on with Postum and it was not long before the color came back to my cheeks and I got strong and fat. I never did have any more stomach trouble. I know I owe it all to Postum."

and has gained good health as well as baby and I, and nothing is too good to Postum. Name given by Postum Creek, Mich.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

CONCERNING THE GROUP OF YOUTHFUL SENATORS.

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION

A Department That Distributes Much Printed Matter—Some of the Fat Plums the President Has at His Disposal.

WASHINGTON.—For the past four years Joseph W. Bailey has held the distinction of being the youngest member of the United States senate.

After the 4th of March he will have to yield that place, as a still younger man will then be the "baby senator." Elmer Jacob Burkett, of Nebraska, will be sworn in on the 4th of March as a senator from that state as the successor of Senator Dietrich. Mr. Burkett was born December 1, 1867. This makes him about four years younger than Mr. Bailey and about five years younger than Mr. Beveridge, of Indiana, who has been a close second to Bailey for the distinction of being the most youthful member of the senate.

All three of these young men might pass for having fewer years than they can lay claim to. Mr. Beveridge undoubtedly is at the present time the most youthful looking man in the senate. He is of rather fair complexion, with dark brown hair, smooth face, and is boyish in his manner and in his feelings. Although Mr. Bailey is a year his junior, the Texan has a dignified bearing and a thoughtful expression that adds to his age, although his face is smooth and as red-cheeked as a boy of 18. His deliberate manner and thoughtful expression are those of a man well on in middle life. He, however, was born on October 6, 1863, while Mr. Beveridge was born on the same day in 1862.

Mr. Burkett would easily be taken for Mr. Beveridge's senior. He has a rather heavy, dignified appearance and is very formal in his address. He represents the possibilities of the American boy and his biography shows that he has won his senatorial toga by merit and hard work. He was born on a farm in Iowa and had the usual experience of a western farmer lad with ambitions that looked beyond the cornfield. He taught school in Nebraska and read law at the state university of that state, being admitted to the bar in 1893. He was elected to the state legislature in 1896 and served three terms in congress.

Senator Frye.

ON March 4 when Charles W. Fairbanks takes the oath of office he will relieve Senator William P. Frye, of Maine, of the duty of presiding over the United States senate. Mr. Frye will again take his seat on the floor of the senate at the first desk in the first row on the republican side adjoining the middle aisle. Since the death of President McKinley, which put Theodore Roosevelt at the head of the government, Mr. Frye has continuously presided over the senate as its president pro tem. He will doubtless continue to enjoy that honor and fill the presiding officer's chair when Vice President Fairbanks is away, but the Indiana senator, as vice president, will wield the gavel by right of his office. It is regarded as fortunate that a member of the senate succeeds to the vice presidency.

Mr. Frye will be welcomed back on the floor of the senate, where he long ago earned distinction as one of the strong debaters in that body. He has been at the head of the senate committee on commerce for many years, and on all measures that come from that committee he is an authority and his speeches are always informative and instructive. He has at his fingers' tips all sorts of information on river and harbor improvements, as for many years he has virtually made those appropriation bills that pertain to this work. A few years ago while debating one of the provisions of a river and harbor bill the senate was startled by the facility with which Mr. Frye reeled off figures, percentages and estimates in a seemingly bewildering tangle. Noticing the curious looks of his colleagues as he would recapitulate a column of figures running into the hundreds of millions, he smilingly explained that when a boy at college his bete noir was mathematics.

The Department of Agriculture.

HE department of agriculture is one of the biggest publication houses in the world. The idea that Secretary Wilson does nothing but ship garden and field seeds to the more or less appreciative constituents of congressmen is a mistaken one, for this distribution is of minor importance compared with the tremendous circulation he gives to the publications issued from his department. He has aimed to make the department an educational institution on all subjects, scientific and practical, that deal with agriculture.

During the last fiscal year this department issued 972 separate bulletins, a big increase over the year before, and they comprised nearly 22,000 printed pages. The total number of copies of all publications sent out during the year was 12,421,386. In five years the publication work of this department has been doubled. In recent years the requests from educational institutions have greatly increased, with normal schools taking the lead.

It has been the policy of Secretary Wilson to see that these educational institutions are supplied with all they want. It is a pretty heavy draft upon the department's resources, as the demands for documents vary in number from 40 to 50 copies of some special class to as many as 6,000 to 7,000 requested by state superintendents for general distribution to teachers. The expenditure of money in this distribution is regarded, however, as fully justified, as it advances the educational work of the department. There is every prospect that these requests for school supplies will greatly increase in the future. The burden upon the United States mail service is as great as is the expense of preparing and printing these documents, but that, too, is regarded as amply justified.

The Presidential Plum Orchard.

AN extra session of the senate is always held immediately after the 4th of March for the purpose of confirming nominations of cabinet officers and members of the diplomatic corps and of other important officers. President Roosevelt starts out on the 4th of March on his own administration. That which has ended was largely an inheritance from the martyred McKinley, and President Roosevelt has done his best to carry out his predecessor's policy, and to redeem McKinley's promises.

Mr. Roosevelt has at his disposal 6,203 "plums," carrying salaries anywhere from $17,500 a year to nothing. These are civil offices known as "presidential," whose incumbents must be confirmed by the senate. They are places in the civil branch that are not covered by the civil service. In addition, of course, there are permanent commissions in the army, navy and judiciary, but these do not count in the distribution of what are recognized as political positions. The most productive part of the presidential plum orchard is that in the post office department. There are 5,082 places at the disposal of the president, all but 14 of them being postmasterships of the first, second and third class. The fourth class postmasterships, which carry less than $1,000 salary, are not distributed by the president.

In the state department there are five ambassadorships paying $17,500 per year each; two ambassadorships, year at Vienna and Rome, paying $12,000. There are 30 ministers who receive $12,000 to $4,000 per annum; then there are secretaryships of embassies and legations paying from $1,500 to $2,625 each. The total number of presidential appointments under the state department amounts to 1,169.

Some Good Berths.

THE best-paying presidential berth in the home service may be at President Roosevelt's disposition very soon. This is the chief justiceship of the supreme court of the United States, which carries salary of $13,000 a year. It has been persistently rumored that Chief Justice Fuller will soon resign, and that his robe of office will fall upon the broad shoulders of Secretary of War Taft. There are eight associate justices of the supreme court who receive $12,500 per annum each, and it is not improbable that the president will have one or more of these commissions to distribute during his next administration.

There are some fat jobs in the customs service, as the collector of the port of New York receives $12,000. There are 123 collectorships of customs paying from $1,000 up. Those at Philadelphia and Boston pay $8,000; that at San Francisco, $7,000; but the average compensation is about $5,000. In the treasury department there are 702 presidential offices that are regarded as very attractive. There are eight assistant United States treasurers, one of whom in New York receives $8,000, or the same salary as the secretary of the treasury himself.

Under the interior department there are 331 presidential berths, but the salaries range from only $1,200 to $7,000. In the department of commerce and labor there are 41, only one of which pays more than $6,000 a year. There are nine presidential offices in the war department; three in the navy department, and three in the department of agriculture. In the department of justice there are a solicitor general, an assistant to the attorney general, six assistant attorneys general, and two solicitors; there are 86 United States district attorneys and as many United States marshals.

Striking a General Average.

"Their pay is shockingly small for some of our public officials," said the broad-minded man.

"Yes," answered the cynic, "but it averages up. Some of the public officials are shockingly small for their pay."—Washington Star.

It is the part of wisdom to make as many friends as you can, and to ask them as few favors as you can.—Ottawa Free Press.

Doing Great Work.

Ward, Ark., March 6th.—(Special)—From all over the West reports come of cures of different forms of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills and this place is not without evidence of the great work the Great American Kidney Remedy is doing.

Among the cured here is Mr. J. V. Waggoner, a well-known citizen who, in an interview, says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me. My kidneys and bladder were badly out of order. I used many medicines but got nothing to cure me till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of them fixed me up so that I have been well ever since."

"Tell the poor kidney and bladder diseased people to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and get well."

No case of kidney complaint is too far gone for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure. They are the only remedy that has ever cured Bright's Disease.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for women's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the female organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains, urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, producing scalding or burning, or deposits like brick dust in it; unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: a Woman's Remedy for Woman's ills.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.

I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.
Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

All Star Cast.

Paris theatre goers will have an opportunity to witness the all star production of "The Two Orphans" at the Lexington Opera House Saturday Matinee and Night, Saturday, March 11th. This is the same organization as created such a sensation at the New Amsterdam Theatre New York last spring. The success attained by it then was so great that the various stars interested were prevailed to make a short tour of the leading cities of the country this season. The event will be one of the most interesting in the history of the local stage, as never before have so many prominent actors been seen together in one company and it is not probable that such an organization will ever again be sent on the road, as the expense attached to it is so great it makes it impossible. It was necessary to find a play that the parts were so evenly balanced and no one player would have an undue advantage over the other. The only play known to the English speaking language stage which fulfilled all these requirements was "The Two Orphans." In selecting the casts for the revival Liebler & Co. were actuated by two motives, they wished to give the public an opportunity to see a perfectly acted play and they also wanted to settle the question as to the comparative merits of the two schools of acting. The representatives of the old school in the company are James O'Neil, Clara Morris, Louis James, and Elita Proctor Otis, the representatives of the modern school are Sarah Truax, Isabel Irving, Bijou Fernandez, Mrs. LeMoine, Jameson Lee Finney and J. E. D. son.

Attacked By a Mob.

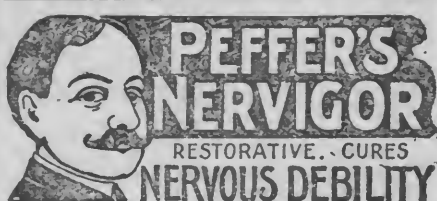

And beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Bucklen Arnica Salve and was soon sound and well. "I use it in my family," writes G. J. Welch, of Teconsa, Mich., "and find it perfect." Simply great for cuts and burns. Only 25c at Oberdorfer's drug store.

BRIGHTEN UP.—Nothing helps the looks of the house more than a fresh coat of paint. The Fair is making a specialty of paint this week.

Are You Engaged?

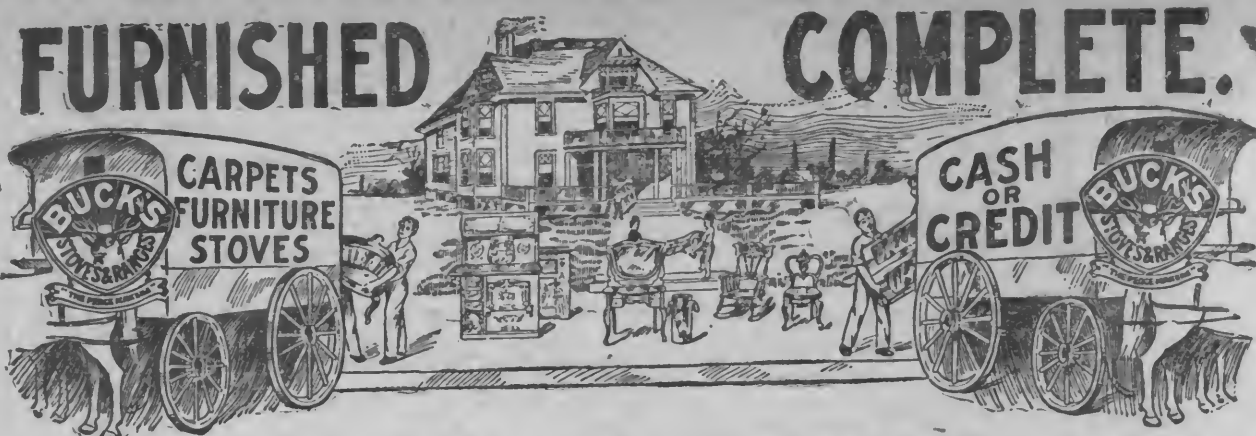

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Benetsville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torrid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Oberdorfer, the druggist, sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle.
